

KENTUCKY IRISH AMERICAN.

VOLUME XL—NO. 2.

LOUISVILLE, SATURDAY, JULY 11, 1903.

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

HIGH HONOR

Conferred Upon the Catholics of Louisville by Bishop McFaul.

Hon Edward J. McDermott Has Accepted Invitation to Speak.

Grand Gathering of Catholics Will Assemble at Atlantic City.

LOUISVILLE WILL BE REPRESENTED

The Jefferson County Federation of Catholic Societies met at Hibernian Hall on Friday night of last week. Considering the season of the year the attendance was fair. The most important matter to come before the meeting was the call for the third national convention of the American Federation of Catholic Societies, which will meet at Atlantic City, New Jersey, August 1 to 5 inclusive. Dr. J. W. Fowler presided. Secretary Eugene Conney read the official call. It is as follows:

The American Federation of Catholic Societies will meet in third national convention at Atlantic City, New Jersey, August 1 to 5. This convention will be most representative and already preparations to attend it have been made by prominent churchmen and laymen from all parts of the United States, many of whom will address the delegates during the open meetings to be held in connection with the convention. The New Jersey Committee is leaving nothing undone to make the convention a great success and assures the delegates an enjoyable and profitable visit to the seashore.

Since the convening of the Chicago convention federation has made progress far beyond the expectations of its most enthusiastic friends. On its membership roster now appear the names of nearly all the prominent societies in the United States and Porto Rico. The movement has received the indorsement of his Excellency the Papal Delegate, eight Archbishops, forty-five Bishops and hundreds of prominent priests. It is carrying out the mission laid down in the encyclicals of our Holy Father Pope Leo XIII. To answer to federation's call is to respond willingly and courageously to the invitation sent out to the Catholics of the whole world by our great Pontiff and to take an active interest in those public duties devolving upon the Catholic citizens of our day. The constitution provides that representation at this convention shall be from State Federations, where such exist; from State Leagues and from County Federations where no State Federations exist, and that such representation shall be on the basis of one delegate for each 1,000 members or major fraction thereof. Each County or State Federation, even though its membership should fall below 1,000, shall be entitled to at least one delegate. National organizations shall be entitled to one delegate-at-large for each 10,000 of its membership.

All organizations and federations wishing representation should secure their credential blanks from the National Secretary, Anthony Matre, 612 East Pearl Street, Cincinnati, not later than July 25. Very respectfully yours,

T. B. MINAHAN, President.

ANTHONY MATRE, Secretary.

Approved: RT. REV. S. G. MESSMER, D. D. RT. REV. JAMES A. McFAUL, D. D. The call in a postscript states that the headquarters for the Federation will be Morris Guards armory, New York avenue, Atlantic City. The opening services will be held in St. Nicholas' church at 9 o'clock a. m. Saturday, August 1. Delegates are advised to secure rooms at the hotels in advance. The rates range from $1.75 to $7 per day, on the American plan.

A letter from the Right Rev. Bishop McFaul announced the recent death of Louis J. Kaufman, of New York, First Vice President of the National Federation.

Another letter was read from Bishop McFaul inviting the Hon. E. J. McDermott to deliver his lecture on "Leo XIII. and the Papacy" on one of the days during which the convention will be held. The reading of this letter met with applause, which was doubled when Dr. Fowler announced that Mr. McDermott had accepted the invitation.

In view of the fact that only four distinguished orators have been invited to deliver set addresses, and that Mr. McDermott is one of these four, the Jefferson County Federation considers itself highly honored. The other speakers will be the Rev. Father Pardow, the noted Jesuit orator; the Hon. Bourke Cockran, of New York City, and Charles J. Bonaparte, of Baltimore.

The next matter discussed by the County Federation was the selection of delegates. Under the rules Kentucky is entitled to fifteen delegates. Of these Louisville is entitled to at least three. The appointment of delegates rests with State President Witte, but the various County Federations are permitted to suggest their respective delegates. A resolution was adopted suggesting to State President Witte that Dr. Joseph W. Fowler, now a member of the National Executive Board, be named as one of the Jefferson County delegates, and that he be allowed to suggest his two associates.

The opinion prevailed that Kentucky ought to send a large and representative delegation. If all do not go as delegates, they may go as visitors, and Dr. Fowler will see that they are allowed on the convention floor, except during executive sessions. The convention should appeal to all Catholic laymen and clergy, as it will be made up of representative men from all over the United States. The Philippines have been federated and will be represented in the convention. Then there will be the four great orators. Bourke Cockran and Father Pardow are of international repute as speakers and thinkers. Charles J. Bonaparte had heretofore a reputation limited to Baltimore. Recently he gained national prominence by being engaged to assist in the prosecution of the men indicted in connection with frauds in the Post-office Department at Washington. A few weeks ago he was honored with the Lætare medal, which is annually bestowed by the University of Notre Dame, Ind.

Charles J. Bonaparte was born in Baltimore June 9, 1851. His father was Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte, who came to America many years ago and settled in Bordentown, N. J. His grandfather was the youngest brother of Napoleon I.

Mr. McDermott is too well known to readers of the Kentucky Irish American to need any introduction. It is safe to say that he will uphold Kentucky's reputation as far as oratory is concerned. He appears before the national convention.

NOVEL FEATURES

Will Be Introduced at Saint Philip Neri's Annual Picnic.

St. Philip Neri's picnic at Phoenix Hill Park on Thursday, July 16, promises to be a grand success. Both the ladies and gentlemen of the parish have entered into the undertaking with their accustomed earnestness. Every effort will be made to entertain all who visit the picnic.

In the afternoon at 3 o'clock a game of euchre will be conducted by the young ladies of the parish. In the evening a special and novel attraction will be the feature. The menu prepared for supper by the ladies of the parish—don't miss it—surpasses both in quantity and quality anything ever given before at a church picnic. Supper will be served from 4:30 to 5:30 p. m. Refreshments will be sold in the park. A very select list of articles has been provided for the "twister." Scally's union band will furnish the music for the entertainment of the crowd. All good people are invited to spend a pleasant day in agreeable company.

The committee in charge of the arrangements is made up of Messrs. J. J. Caffrey, Fred A. Bauer, M. A. McGee, Con T. Murphy, William Bannan, J. T. Breitell. The gentlemen will be ably assisted by the following ladies: Mrs. Frank Fisher, Mrs. G. M. Dowling, Mrs. J. J. Caffrey, Miss Ora Brownfield, Miss Mary Agnes Dunane and Miss Alice Fisher. Mrs. Peter J. Riley will be in charge of the soda fountain. The wheel of fortune will be under the care of Messrs. Patrick McCarthy, M. McGee, Thomas Bohan, Fred Bauer and Hugh Gorman.

IT HAPPENS

That Best Laid Plans of Mice and Men Gang Aft Agley.

Not long ago a young couple were married in a local church. Of course they were very much in love and had made arrangements for an elegant, not to say an elaborate, ceremony at the church. The organist had been engaged to play Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" when the bridal party entered, "Call Me Thine Own" while the ceremony was being performed, and the "Wedding March from Lohengrin" as the bridal party left the church.

At the appointed hour the organist and members of the choir were in their respective places. A sentinel, as it were, in the shape of a small boy had been placed in the vestibule to give notice of the advent of the bridal party. The carriage drove up. The boy signalled the organist and the magnificent strains of the wedding march rang through the church as the bridal party wended its way toward the altar railing. The priest came out and the organ delicately sounded "Call Me Thine Own." Down the aisle marched the newly made man and wife to the stately measure of another march. Organist and choir hurried forth to fasten fresh kisses on the lips of the bride and groom.

Horror! They ran right into the wedding couple they had been engaged to do service for. The first couple had come in from the country to be married and had no thought of wedding marches.

The country couple now believe that some of their friends engaged that organist and choir as a pleasant surprise.

ENGAGED FOR THE SEASON.

Sylvester Grove, one of Louisville's most talented and promising young baritone singers, has been engaged to sing at the concerts at Senning's Park during the summer months. Mr. Grove has been prominently identified with local amateur theatricals for several years past, and has a voice of great power and sweetness. His friends believe his present engagement will lead to something better.

STILL HOVERING BETWEEN LIFE AND DEATH.

LADY FRIENDS

Of the Hibernians Are to Be Pleasantly Entertained Tomorrow.

Short Addresses and Vocal and Instrumental Music the

All the Local Divisions Have Contributed to Make It a Success.

PLEASANT HOURS ANTICIPATED

The State Board, Ancient Order of Hibernians, has completed arrangements for the big social meeting of the order to be held at Hibernian Hall tomorrow night. This meeting has a two-fold object—first, to bring the members of the four divisions together for a social evening, and, secondly, to try to get the ladies interested in order that a ladies' auxiliary may be formed. Every Hibernian in the city is invited not only to present himself, but also to bring his wife, mother, daughter, sister, sweetheart or any of his lady friends. An interesting programme has been arranged, consisting of brief addresses and vocal and instrumental music. Several novel features are promised which will delight and entertain.

In case the social meeting tomorrow night is successful, there will be other similar meetings arranged in the future, as it will serve not only to instruct and entertain, but will serve to bring the members together and to make the lady friends of Hibernians better acquainted with each other.

Every division in Louisville has done its part toward making the affair a success. Money has been appropriated by each of the four divisions and all that could be done has been done to make the Hibernians and their lady friends spend a pleasant evening.

Division 4 met Wednesday evening, with a good attendance. All its members are enthusiastically in favor of the social meeting to be held tomorrow evening. President John H. Hennessey occupied the chair. Timothy Swift was elected to membership. Messrs. Charles Callahan, James Kenaley and James Hogan were reported on the sick list.

The following Field Day Committee was appointed: John J. Barry, John P. Hellon and Joseph Hanrahan. This committee will have charge of the refreshments for the Irish field day. Joseph Hanrahan was appointed as a substitute member of the Visiting Committee in place of Chairman James Kenaley, who is ill. Among those members who were present who had not attended a meeting for a long time were Frank Meagher, Robert Mitchell, Thomas Dolan, John Hanrahan and Michael Doyle. Every member in the hall promised to attend the meeting tomorrow night and to bring his lady friends.

Division 3 met Monday night and appropriated a suitable sum of money to help the State Board in defraying the expenses of the social meeting. Members of Jeffersonville and New Albany divisions are also expected to be present, with their lady friends.

WORTH APPRECIATED.

John Cavanaugh has been re-elected

President of Iron Molders' Union No. 16. This is his second consecutive term as President. A few years ago Mr. Cavanaugh served several terms as President of this union and then declined to stand for re-election. However, his colleagues decided he was the proper man to be at the helm and have twice re-elected him to the Presidency. This ought to show that you can not keep a good Irish-American down.

MORE WORK.

Father Cronin, named as ecclesiastical Superior at Nazareth.

Our Right Rev. Bishop, William George McCloskey, has appointed Vicar General Father Cronin, ecclesiastical Superior of the Sisters of Nazareth, a position long held and zealously ministered to by the late Monsignor Bouchet of blessed memory. Thus a little more honor and a great deal more work are thrust upon the shoulders of the Very Rev. Father Cronin, pastor of St. Patrick's church.

But Father Cronin is a sample of the Kentucky Irish-American. He takes to work like a duck does to water. If the honor comes with it, it is all right. If it does not, he has the consciousness of duty well done. His people not only in St. Patrick's congregation, but all over the diocese, know him and revere him, both as priest and man. Father Cronin is not looking for honors; he is looking for work. He is getting both.

PLEASANT TRIP

County President P. T. Sullivan Tells of His Visit to Earlington.

County President Patrick T. Sullivan has returned home from a pleasant trip to Earlington, Ky. He and his wife and little daughter Nellie were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smith. Mr. Smith is a brother-in-law of Mr. Sullivan and Deputy Sheriff at Earlington. Mrs. Sullivan and little Miss Nellie Sullivan will remain several weeks longer in Earlington. To a representative of the Kentucky Irish American Mr. Sullivan said: "I enjoyed my trip hugely. Mr. and Mrs. Smith met us at the depot and gave us a royal welcome to Earlington. Everybody tried to please us and show us a good time. The town is up and down hill and reminds me of my old home in Hardin county. It is a good business town, too. The people give you a hearty handshake that makes you feel at home. We had a great picnic at the grove on July 4. A lake about one mile square lies beside the grove. Old-fashioned quadrilles were features of the picnic, and you ought to see Tom Smith and Mrs. Sullivan stepping it. Young Tom Smith dances as well as his father, and if appearances count I think there will soon be another Mrs. Tom Smith in Earlington. On Sunday we attended mass, and I will say I was never in a nicer church. And the choir could give lessons to some of the Louisville choir. They have a fine school and five Sisters as teachers. The priest is a fine, earnest gentleman. After dinner on Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Smith and daughter, my wife and daughter and myself went over to Madisonville. On Monday we went into the mines and traveled several miles under ground.

James Dolan, National President of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, has expressed to National Chaplain Bishop Glennon the sympathy of the entire order over the serious illness of the Pope.

PRAYERS

For Pope Leo Are Being Offered Up All Over the World.

The End of a Long and Useful Life Close at Countless Thousands Express Sympathy For the Dying Pontiff.

SCHOLAR, DIPLOMAT AND STATESMAN

Since Sunday, July 5, the whole world has been waiting for news of His Holiness, Pope Leo XIII. On the night of July 4 the news was flashed round the world that he had suffered an attack of pleuropneumonia, a disease which is generally fatal with young and robust people. Hence in a man of the Pope's years the most serious results might be expected. Europe, Asia, Africa, North, South and Central America, the Philippines, and far off Australia, all clamored for news of the Pope's condition, while prayers were continually going up that he be spared to his people. Prayers in convents and monasteries, in palaces and cabins, all breathed forth for the great Vicar of Christ upon earth, have been ascending to the throne of the Most High. The monarch, the statesman, the merchant, the soldier, sailor, mechanic, husbandman and humble laborer, all united in one grand prayer: "God Spare Pope Leo to us a while longer."

It was not Catholics alone who were interested. The whole civilized world awaited the news of his recovery or happy death. Newspaper offices were besieged with anxious inquirers, and every daily paper had page after page concerning his illness, his probable successor, his chronological record and incidents of his life. And why? Because they all recognized involuntarily that he was not only the head of the one, true church, but the greatest man of the nineteenth century—yes, possibly that the twentieth century would not produce his equal as statesman, diplomat, scholar, educator and friend of the people. Pope Leo has always taken a bold stand for progress. In fact it might be said that he is the very personification of progress. He was the friend of arts and letters, of commerce, of medicine and law and order.

So often in recent years have cablegrams been sent out concerning the Pope's health that for a period of twenty-four hours few in America believed his condition was serious. Then came more details and official bulletins. Later the word came to the church dignitaries. On Wednesday his Eminence Cardinal James Gibbons left Baltimore for New York en route to Europe. On Thursday he sailed for Havre. In the event of the Pope's death he will go direct to Rome. Otherwise he will remain in Paris.

His Holiness Pope Leo XIII. at the time the Kentucky Irish American goes to press is close to death's door. After a week of strenuous efforts on the part of Dr. Lapponi, the latter has given up all hope of the Pope's recovery. Only yesterday, after receiving a cheering message from an Irish-American priest, our Holy Father said: "The Americans have always showed me more affection than any other people. I love them."

GENERAL REGRET

Expressed Over the Terrible Assassination of Pulaski Leeds.

Shopmen and Officers Attended the Funeral in a Body.

Held in High Esteem by His Superiors and His Employees.

THE FUNERAL LARGELY ATTENDED

"Pulaski Leeds is dead," was the announcement made at the Louisville & Nashville railroad shops last Wednesday morning, and it sent a thrill of horror through every one of the employees of that great railroad company. Mr. Leeds had been their friend, their adviser and benefactor, and now he was no more. Stricken down by the bullet of an assassin, he suffered in agony forty-eight hours and then death came to his relief. His death was due to bullet wounds inflicted by George Warner, a former employee, who had been discharged as electrician at the Louisville & Nashville shops at Decatur, Ala.

Pulaski Leeds was born near New Haven, Conn., fifty-nine years ago. As a boy he gave evidence of his love for mechanics, and as a youth became a machinist's apprentice. After serving his time as an apprentice and a short while as a journeyman machinist he went on the road as a locomotive fireman. A few years later he became an engineer. He was practically a self-made man. All the learning he got he possessed himself of by contact with the world. Twenty-two years ago he came to Louisville as Master Mechanic of the Louisville & Nashville railroad shops. His ability was at once recognized by superior officers and employees. In 1889 he was made Superintendent of Machinery. This gave him a prestige, more than any other one man belongs the credit for the mechanical department is concerned.

Mr. Leeds was a diamond in the rough. He was over six feet tall and weighed about 300 pounds, but then it needed big bones and a big body to carry the big heart possessed by Pulaski Leeds. He treated all alike, rich or poor, high or low. He would address the humblest mechanic or the President of his company in the same manner. His style of address was considered gruff by those who did not know him, and yet, when one became acquainted with him, it was the man and not his manner of speaking that was considered.

One day many years ago an Irishman very old and very feeble applied to Mr. Leeds for a job.

"I have no job for you," said Mr. Leeds briskly. "There is no work here you can do."

"Sure, I'm not looking for work," said the Irishman. "All I want is to get me name on the pay roll."

He made a hit with Pulaski Leeds and his name was on the pay roll until the poor old fellow died. Mr. Leeds was a great friend of the Little Sisters of the Poor and never passed them without giving them money for the care of the aged and infirm.

His funeral took place yesterday afternoon from the Fourth avenue Methodist church. The funeral was attended by the 1,300 employees of the local shops and by delegations from the shops all over the Louisville & Nashville system.

BASKET PICNIC

Will Be Given at Sugar Grove by Mackin Council, Y. M. I.

Mackin Council, Y. M. I., held an enthusiastic meeting Tuesday night and discussed arrangements for the family basket picnic which is to be held at Sugar Grove on Monday, August 3. After a full and free discussion it was determined to have no dancing, in deference to the wishes of the Right Rev. Bishop. Instead the affair will be an old fashioned basket picnic in all that these words imply. For the young men and boys, there will be running races, sack races, three-legged races, etc. Boats will leave the Portland wharf at 8 o'clock a. m. and 1 o'clock p. m., for Sugar Grove, stopping at the New Albany wharf at 8:15 in the morning and 1:15 in the afternoon. Every arrangement is being made for the entertainment and comfort of Mackin Council's guests.

THE NEGRO.

The Afro-American convention and its results were to the credit of the colored people, though the meetings were marred by incendiary speeches and disorder. This simply proves that the colored folks have an element of rash and noisy disturbers they must restrain and suppress. It is such insolent negroes that engender strife. The negro will be respected and protected just as he proves worthy of it, and restricted or squelched as he deserves. Insolence and inciting to lawlessness invites race war and often causes it. The indorsement of Booker Washington and other conservative representatives of the colored people by the convention despite the opposition of the radicals will tend to inspire public confidence and respect, since it demonstrates that the vast majority of the leading negroes are favorable to law and order, and the b-a-d niggahs, though noisy and saucy, are an insignificant minority. The carrying out of the declarations of the convention will receive the co-operation of the white people if the colored folks prove their earnestness by observing them. Incendiary and rowdism will not be tolerated, and the b-a-d niggah must and will be suppressed, and the decent negroes will best ing and among the whites by ignoring the disorderly element among them.

SITUATION IN FRANCE.

France is beginning to realize the results of persecution, robbery and banishment of the religious orders. Communities deprived of education refuse to levy taxes to establish and maintain State schools; the suppression of industries conducted by religious orders has destroyed the trade of entire provinces, people are deprived of employment, railways of traffic, merchants and financiers of profitable business. To build schools and provide teachers will cost millions, which will have to be paid for by the Government, which has no funds for that purpose, and the communes decline to support or send the children to them if established. Then the loss of industry, traffic and business, leaves thousands without employment, a burden on the Government to feed, for they have been taught to look to the Government for sustenance. Already the commercial reports of France show a marked decrease and loss, which must cause privation and hardship to the peasantry and working people, all of which tends to revolution. As to the means of averting the disasters threatened the French Ministry are at sea, divided and dilatory, when a fixed, intelligent and prompt course of action is necessary. History only repeats itself; like causes produce like results. France is no exception, and seems nearing the verge of such periods in her career. Having sowed the wind, she will certainly reap the whirlwind, and as in 1768, 1830 and 1848, government folly and injustice will bring about government overthrow.

THEY WILL LEARN.

The serious illness and expected death of His Holiness Leo XIII., attracted world-wide attention, and the latest dispatches to the minutest detail were eagerly read by everyone, and the keenest interest manifested by non-Catholics. Their questions as to the Pope, the ceremonies and functions of the church, and other matters, illustrated their false ideas, based on lack of knowledge, and many have been enlightened.

One gentleman reading of the administering of the sacraments to the Pope, dropped the paper and asked of a Catholic friend:

"Why, does the Pope go to confession?"

"Of course, the same as any other Catholic; only that the Pope goes oftener."

"I thought you Catholics, believing the Pope infallible, held him above committing sin, and he being at the head of the church, who is authorized to hear his confession and forgive his sins?"

"Infallible is not immaculate. The Pope is head of the church, but the Pope is but a man, after all. Any priest is authorized to hear confessions and forgive sins. The Pope selects his confessor, just as any other Catholic may, but all Catholics, regardless of their position or station, go to confession."

"And the Cardinals, Archbishops?"

"All of them; the priests, religious and the laity; no exception."

"The priests! Who do they confess to?"

"A priest, of course."

And so of other incidents mentioned during the past week relating to the Pope and the church, of which there seems to be universal ignorance and sometimes ridiculous ideas among non-Catholics, that in they will learn in due time, and as the people learn the truth opposition to the church will be dispelled, as the fact is established that Catholics neither believe nor practice what non-Catholics think of them.

A Harvard professor protested against permitting the general discharge of fireworks on the Fourth because of damage to health, life and property, and urged suit against municipalities by those who suffered thereby as the best means of suppressing it. If college professors would imitate the shoemaker, stick to their lasts, they would avoid making fools of themselves. Statistics do not sustain the professor's assertions. That the general discharge of fireworks is dangerous everyone knows, and therefore special precautions are taken by the authorities, the citizens and even the small boy, with the result that with the whole republic blazing away, damage to property, life and limb is a small minimum. But the noise disturbs the professor's nerves! Well, he is entirely free to tie pillows about his ears, shut himself in the cellar or go far away into the country, and in quiet and solitude celebrate, just as the vast majority are at liberty to give vent to their patriotism otherwise as they prefer. Everyone is free in this country to do pretty much as he pleases on the Fourth without trenching upon the rights—not the whims—of his neighbors; but freedom to do as you please does not imply that no one else can do otherwise.

England and Japan have filed protest at Pekin—not St. Petersburg—against Russian occupation of Manchuria, and dictating what they want China to demand and enforce of Russia in future negotiations and settlements. This seems what it really is—a bit of diplomatic bombast. The protests should have been made to the first party, the aggressor, the beneficiary of the Manchurian issue—Russia—which would be able to carry out any pledges given; not to the second party, the aggrieved, the loser, unable to grant anything without violation of treaty. China will not be duped into any such foolhardiness, nor even into acting as supplicant at St. Petersburg for the protestants, who seem to lack the courage to speak for themselves to the first party. Russia has too strongly intimidated what her answer will be to any protest of the kind. She holds Manchuria and other concessions under treaty with China, not England and Japan, and will undoubtedly demonstrate that fact if they continue their interference.

The source of opposition to franchises and rights of way for inter-urban railways is at last located—the Louisville City Railway Company. Does this account for such legal opinions, as for instance: An electric railway from Cincinnati to Louisville is not a "trunk" line, though a steam railway from the bridge to a depot is a "trunk" line? Good law, if it suits your purpose.

The hot weather is having an irritating effect on the Aldermen. At the last meeting they were throwing such bouquets as "liar," "coward," "cur," "schemer," and several became decidedly hot in the collar and tried to mix it up. Put more ice in the cooler.

KATHLEEN DON LEAVY.

Writer of Prose and Poetry Who Has Won Fame in Literary Circles.

Miss Kathleen Don Leavy is one of the Irish-American poets, novelists and writers on general topics at the present day whose name is seen almost every time the reader picks up a Catholic newspaper or magazine. Although Miss Don Leavy has been for several years past a resident of this city, comparatively little is known of her personality as far as the people of Louisville are concerned.

Miss Don Leavy was born in New York City and of Irish parentage. Her father, Francis Don Leavy, was of noble lineage, tracing his ancestry back to the Don Leavys of Sligo. Her father died when Kathleen was a small child, and her mother, Mrs. Don Leavy, as her home, loving "Old Virginia" as one to the manner born. There she received her education at St. Joseph's Academy, where she was a pupil from her sixth year. Twelve years later she graduated from that institution with distinction. During her school years Kathleen won the love of all her teachers by her gentleness, her affectionate disposition, her ardent love for study and her reverence for the dear Sisters who conducted the institution and who have always been her most cherished friends and advisers.

Early in her school career she evinced a talent for literary work. She studied the best authors of English prose and poetry, and after leaving school she wrote extensively, for a number of years contributing to various Catholic magazines and newspapers as well as to the secular press of Richmond. Her imaginative powers developed by writing on a variety of topics and brought her into touch with the inspiration of the Muses, so she gradually turned her attention to poetry. That she has become a poet of renown no one can doubt. Her ardent love for the beautiful, the good and the true, and her longing to impart to others the golden treasure of good reading, is ever apparent in everything that comes from her prolific pen, be it prose or poetry.

Some years ago she embarked on a bold venture, the establishment of a Catholic journal at Richmond. It was known as the Catholic Friend. From the start it made its mark as a literary work and received the highest eulogiums of the secular and Catholic press. Adversity overtook it unfortunately, and the Catholic Friend is no more.

A little more than two years ago Miss Don Leavy and her mother removed to Louisville. Since then Mrs. Don Leavy died and Miss Kathleen has made her home with relatives on Oak street, between Ninth and Tenth. She is devoting her life to the cause so dear to her heart, Catholic literature. Her pen is always at the command of Catholic editors. Instead of her disposition being soured by adversity, it has added to her native sweetness.

Miss Don Leavy has an extraordinarily high sense of honor coupled with great kindness of heart. She is noted for her loyalty and devotion to friends. In the near future she expects to publish a volume of poems entitled "A Bunch of Flowers," and later a Catholic novel, "Ignatia." At present Miss Don Leavy is regular contributor to the Good House, a magazine of Villanova, Pa.; Homeless Boys' Friend, of Cincinnati; the Record and the Kentucky Irish American, and occasionally to several others.

CALLED HOME

One of Kentucky's Most Gifted Young Women Has Passed Away.

Miss Benita Monarch, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Monarch, died at her home in Owensboro on Thursday last week. Miss Monarch was twenty-three years old and was an exceptionally bright young lady. During the past year she had been a victim to consumption and for several weeks before her death had been confined to her bed. The deceased was accomplished and very proficient in music, in which study she had taken an extended course at St. Mary's Academy, Notre Dame, Ind. She would have completed her classical course there this year had not ill-health interfered. She was given every attention that medical science and kind parents could minister, but it availed nothing. Slowly, painfully, yet cheerfully, she sank into eternity.

The deceased leaves three brothers, Messrs. M. V. Monarch, Jr., Dan Monarch, of Owensboro, and Lamar Monarch, of Oak Grove, Ky., and one sister, Mrs. D. J. Geary, of Oil City, Pa. The funeral took place from St. Paul's Catholic church on Saturday morning, when a solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated.

If you have some black lace that looks hopelessly rusty soak it for some hours in a solution of vinegar and water (two tablespoonsful of the former to a pint of the latter is about the right proportion), then rinse in cold coffee and iron while damp in two pieces of flannel. It is wonderful how the treatment improves shabby lace.

Brewer.

One of Nature's Noblemen Removed After Years of Usefulness.

Hatred For None and Charity Toward All Was His Motto.

HIS DEATH GENERALLY REGRETTED.

John E. Walter, one of Louisville's best known and most respected German-American citizens, died suddenly and unexpectedly at his home, 818 Clay street, at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. Mr. Walter had suffered from a complication of diseases during the past eleven years. However, he was cheerful through all his sufferings and greeted his friends as pleasantly as if he had neither pain nor ache. Recently his ailment took a turn for the worse, and while his condition was known to be serious, it was not considered dangerous. Wednesday morning he felt so much improved that he arose from his bed and sat in a chair. Suddenly, while his relatives were ministering to him, he fell back in the chair and died.

John E. Walter was at the time of his death engaged in business with his brother, Frank Walter. They were the proprietors of the Clay-street brewery. Mr. Walter was born in Louisville forty-six years ago and was a son of Conrad Walter, proprietor of the Clay-street brewery. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Schene, and two children. He was a brother-in-law of Joseph Schene, Deputy County Clerk, and an uncle of Frank Dacher, Deputy Circuit Clerk. The deceased was a devout Catholic and an exemplary member of a family of devout Catholics. Shortly before his mother's death, which occurred a few years ago, she presented a magnificent memorial altar to St. Martin's church, of which congregation she and her family were members. Mr. Walter was a member of the Roman Knights of St. John and of several other Catholic societies.

Those who knew him best say that John E. Walter followed strictly the Biblical injunction: "Let not the right hand know what the left hand doeth." His hand was ever ready to extend material aid to the needy, and to the widow and the orphan. He was a man among men. The funeral took place from St. Martin's church at 10 o'clock yesterday morning.

The pall-bearers were selected from his friends and acquaintances and are as follows: George S. Schuhmann, Fred Hoertz, Henry Pelle, Col. Sebastian Gunther, John Reid, Joseph Pirman, F. Joseph Herrmann, Gus Moellmann, Philip Sengel, Jacob Shaefer, Henry Baumgarten, Jacob Kramer, William Schmitt, Angelo Mazzoni.

Rarely has ever such a large assemblage visited St. Martin's church to attend the last rites accorded to the remains of any man. Protestant and Catholic were alike in showing their respect to the memory of their dead friend. The Roman Knights of St. John attended in a body and led the funeral procession, while several of the members acted as a guard of honor beside the hearse.

GOOD FOR DR. BAKER.

Postmaster Baker is to be congratulated on relieving the letter carriers of their coats during the hot weather. The carriers look more comfortable in neat negligee shirts than when sweltering beneath heavy gray coats. The letter carriers are certainly thankful to Dr. Baker.

CHARITY CLUB PICNIC.

The Charity Club met at its headquarters, 1375 Seventh street, last Tuesday evening and made further arrangements for the picnic to be held at Phoenix Hill Park on the afternoon and evening of Wednesday, July 22. It was determined to engage Morbach's orchestra for the occasion, which ought to be a sufficient guarantee that dancers will be well entertained. Chartered cars will be on hand at Seventh and Oak streets at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon to carry children to the park. Supper will be served during the evening by the members of the Charity Club's Ladies' Auxiliary Committee. Among these ladies are Mesdames Chris Luckert, Katie Newman, Eliza Jameson, John Rohrman, John Hannon, Jacob Brill, Joseph Schoene-mann and others. As the proceeds are to be devoted to a worthy purpose it is hoped that the attendance will be large.

LETTER OF THANKS

From President Dolan to the United Irish League of America.

Hon. James E. Dolan, National President of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, has written a cordial letter of thanks to the National Committee of the United Irish League acknowledging the receipt of the resolution of gratitude from that organization for its recent endorsement by the Ancient Order of Hibernians' national directory. Mr. Dolan's letter is as follows:

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 27, 1903.—John O'Callaghan, Boston, Mass.—Dear Sir: Permit me to acknowledge the receipt of your kind communication of June 13, which I received on my return home from a somewhat extended trip. AWAKENING

The Gael Is About to Resume His Place in the World.

Art, Poetry, Literature, the Drama and Commerce Hail Him.

Tyranny Has Subdued But Never Conquered the Irish Soul.

THE RENAISSANCE OF THE GAEL

The new Irish drama which is to appear some time this fall, the story of which is written on paper made from Irish linen, grown, of course, on Irish soil, is said to be the truest expression of Irish sentiment written this score of years. The fairies are dancing in the moonlight, the child that was "overlooked" has joined the band that rides the wind on broomsticks or delves for gold in their little red cloaks at the foot of the oak trees. The weird and mysterious, the trusting and serious name of the Gael, are depicted, they say, in this peculiarly characteristic and simple folk story.

The Gaelic tongue never died, though in many parts of Ireland it has slumbered for several centuries. But what is a century or two to a people overflowing with moral and intellectual vigor? Though the most brutal laws did dam up the freedom of this vigor's flow, yet it rose steadily and surely, till in sweeping away all opposition its virility is a surprise to the world. Religion, law, poetry, belle-letters, trades, arts, patriotism, all are enriched by the originality and sincerity of the Gael. The dramatist is now beginning to see his altruism, his romantic conceptions of the commonplace, his love of knight errantry, his universal sympathy with humanity, and in placing this admixture of earth and heaven before the world the Gael has not a great to lose but the universe to win. The glowing imagination of Thomas Moore is only repeated over again in monasteries of our own day and in the seminaries of our own land, from whose sanctuaries have come the Parleys, Gibbons, Irelands, Quigleys, O'Donoghues and Hogans, these only taking the places of the McHales, Crokes, Walshes, O'Donnells and an embrowned host of Irish intellects of the good but sorrowful days of old.

Who can say that the statesmen of today excel the heroes and parliamentarians of the days of O'Connell and his predecessors? Yet we must and do feel proud of our Parnells, Redmonds, Davitts, Dillon, Powers and of our aristocrats of the pen, our Irish editors, our poets, doctors of law and medicine, our book-makers, teachers, artists and musicians. With all this and as much more it can not be said that our period is significant of a renaissance, because the same condition has heretofore existed, the appreciation of the fact alone being wanting. This appreciation is now coming to the front and to this awakening to the manifold ability of the Gael is due the use of the misleading term "Irish renaissance." Love of the grand and true was as vivid in the days of Brian Boru and in 1798 as now, and in the days of Lover, Carleton, "Zosimus," or when a half century ago Erin's glowing bard addressed the land of his birth in the affectionate words of "Sweet Vale of Avoca" or the apostrophe found later in Lalla Rookh:

"Go wing thy flight from star to star,
From world to luminous world, as far
As the universe spreads its flaming wall;
Take all the pleasures of all the spheres,
And multiply each thro' countless years,
One moment of heaven is worth them all."

The true "Irish renaissance" will come only when the shadows that are beginning to scatter from the blue vault of Erin shall have departed forever. When Mangan and Davis and Meagher and Moore sang of the beauties of their own native shore the sorrowing cadence of a minor key alone suited the measure of their melody. But as the purple uplifts the gold of morning takes its place and when the bright noonday comes for the land of the Gael's forefathers, then will come the real "Irish renaissance."

PICNIC FOR ST. PAUL'S.

The people of St. Paul's congregation are using every effort to make their picnic to be held at Phoenix Hill Park, on Tuesday July 21, a success. Tickets for adults will be twenty-five cents; children between eight and twelve years will be charged ten cents, and children under eight years will be admitted free. Each ticket holder will be entitled to a chance on a Kingsbury cabinet grand piano now on exhibition at Montenegro & Riehm's windows, 628 Fourth avenue; forty yards of crimson velvet carpet, shown in the store of J. Bacon & Sons, and a lady's gold watch and chain. Any or all of the above articles can be drawn by holders of tickets, regardless of whether they attend the picnic. A union band will be in attendance and dinner and refreshments will be served during the afternoon and evening.

IMPROVEMENTS CONTEMPLATED.

Thomas J. Minary, President of the Louisville Railway Company, has announced that in case a tunnel is built underneath the Louisville & Nashville tracks at Oak street, the street car company will extend its lines west on Oak street to Eighteenth, or perhaps farther, and south to the end of Brook street.
